

Online Course:
YFE 845

Intergenerational Programs and Practices

Spring 2010

3 credits

Schedule #: 424405

Instructor: Matt Kaplan, Ph.D.
E-mail: msk15@psu.edu
Phone: 814-863-7871
Office: 007A Ferguson Building
<http://intergenerational.cas.psu.edu>

Course Format: This is an online course offered in the Youth and Family Education Program within the Department of Agricultural and Extension Education in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

The course begins January 11, 2010 and ends on April 30, 2010.

In order to complete this course, access to ANGEL, Penn State's course management system, is required.

Course Description: This course will explore intergenerational programs and practices found in schools, retirement communities, health care facilities, recreation centers, and other community settings. Students will learn about programs from around the world that are designed to: meet elder-care and childcare needs, strengthen educational systems, strengthen families, and build more cohesive, caring communities. Students will also learn about techniques for communicating effectively with co-workers and family members of different generations.

To Enroll: You can register for the course on eLion. Students with questions or difficulty registering should contact Continuing Education at 814-865-3443.